

Though they were often pitted against each other, pop princesses Britney and Christina have proven with decades-long careers that there's room for both divas at the top.